Continuous Crisis Committee (CCC)

This committee challenges delegates to think critically and adapt to unforeseen circumstances, fostering their problem-solving skills in a simulated global crisis scenario.

The Continuous Crisis Committee (CCC) is a dynamic and fast-paced committee format in Model United Nations (MUN). Unlike traditional committees, the CCC presents delegates with an ever-changing crisis scenario, requiring quick thinking and strategic decision-making. In the CCC, delegates assume roles as key decision-makers involved in managing a crisis. They face unexpected challenges and must respond to crisis updates, adapt strategies, and collaborate with others to navigate the evolving events.

Participating in the CCC enhances critical thinking, problem-solving, and teamwork skills. Delegates learn to analyse information rapidly, make informed decisions, and anticipate consequences. The CCC fosters adaptability, resilience, and effective leadership in high-pressure environments.

Engaging in the CCC is an exhilarating experience that encourages strategic negotiation, diplomacy, and creativity. It prepares delegates for real-world challenges, equipping them with valuable skills and promoting teamwork in high-stakes situations.
